School Characteristics and Replicable Practices

Academic Excellence

- Every class has clear and high expectations. Students are expected to meet rigorous standards.
- The seven-period day allows for both interventions and electives with a double block of math.
- The International Baccalaureate (IB) Middle Years Program enriches the curriculum and instruction for all the students.
- Integrated, thematic instruction is tied to the IB program.
- Academy teacher teams meet daily for Academic and Curriculum Enhancement for Students (ACES) enhancing students' success.
- Many intervention options support student success,
- AVID (Advancement Via Individual Determination) methodologies are implemented throughout all courses for all students.

Development Responsiveness

- Transitions from feeder elementary and to destination high schools are smooth and effectively planned.
- Student voice is an active part of the curriculum. Students frequently revise work, develop rubrics and create anchors.
- Interdisciplinary instruction makes connections for students and creates a sense of reality for them.
- An seven-period day allows each teacher to have daily focused, standards-based professional development.
- A flexible, team-structured schedule creates many opportunities to extend and expand student learning.
- School staff members clearly understand the developmental needs of young adolescents and provide educational experiences that meet these needs.
- Schoolwide rubric grading is in place.

Social Equity

- The seven-period day allows lower level students and English language development students opportunities to have both effective intervention and an elective.
- English learners are expected to meet the same high expectations that other students must meet.
- Students often cross economic, cultural, and social lines to interact with each other. School staff members encourage respect for all.
- R-FEP (Reclassified to Fluent English Proficient) and GATE (Gifted and Talented Education) students are clustered in core classes.
- A co-teaching model is in place—the core teacher and the resource specialist teacher plan, implement, assess, and revise curriculum based upon the specific needs of learning disabled students.

Organizational Support

- Teachers are committed and go the distance to make things happen for students.
- The school's vision is shared by everyone. The faculty enjoys grappling with difficult problems.
- Professional development is focused on student learning.
- The school district is solidly behind its principal and the school staff.
